

FULBRIGHT

U.S. Scholar Program Overview

Pamela Smith, assistant professor at Boston College Law School, Newton, MA, lectured on United States intellectual property laws, regulations and policies at Renmin University, Beijing, China..

From community colleges to liberal arts institutions to large research universities, U.S. administrators are increasingly focused on campus internationalization. The Fulbright Scholar Program provides a key resource in support of this effort. Fulbright provides the following grant opportunities for researchers, lecturers and administrators:

Core Program

This program provides approximately 800 teaching and/or research grants lasting three months to one year. Grantees lecture and conduct research in a wide variety of academic and professional fields. As a result of this program, faculty and their home institutions build a 'multiplier effect' by infusing cross-cultural perspectives into curricula, revitalizing teaching methods, and opening doors for international colleagues and students. Grants in more than 125 countries are available.

The Core Program also includes Distinguished Chair awards. These highly selective awards are for eminent scholars with significant publication and teaching records.

Fulbright Specialist Program

The Fulbright Specialist Program provides grants lasting two to six weeks. The program provides grantees with the flexibility to schedule projects within their current academic or professional commitments.

Fulbright International Education Administrator Seminars

Through these short-term seminars, U.S. administrators engage in an intensive, comparative study of the society, culture and higher education systems of Germany, Japan, South Korea or India. These two- to three-week seminars enable participants to return to campus with innovative ideas, methods, and international contacts.

Fulbright German Studies Seminar

Designed for a small cohort of U.S. scholars of German studies or other disciplines related to an annual seminar topic, this two-week seminar allows scholars to examine current issues affecting Germany and the European Union.

If you are interested in applying for a Fulbright grant, contact a program officer at 202-686-4000 or peruse the Catalog of Awards at www.iie.org/cies.

FULBRIGHT

Visiting Scholar Program Overview

The following programs offer opportunities for U.S. institutions to host Fulbright Visiting Scholars and professionals from abroad to lecture at U.S. colleges and universities.

Core Program

Each year more than 800 faculty and professionals from over 150 countries receive Fulbright grants to conduct research, lecture or pursue combined lecturing and research in the United States. Visiting Fulbright Scholars further internationalize U.S. campuses by introducing students and faculty to new ideas and contacts. Email scholars@iie.org to learn how to host a Visiting Scholar.

Fulbright Scholar-in-Residence

The Fulbright Scholar-in-Residence (SIR) Program assists institutions historically underrepresented in international academic exchange and allows scholars outside the United States to gain experience in U.S. higher education.

European Union Scholar-in-Residence Program

Through an arrangement with the European Union, grants are available to bring European scholars specializing in EU affairs to U.S. campuses as resident fellows for one term of the academic year.

Samer Abu Libdeh, director of Interaction Forum in Amman, Jordan, researched the process of U.S. and Jordanian official state relations at The Washington Institute for Near East Policy, Washington, D.C.

Occasional Lecturer Fund

Through this travel fund, you may invite Visiting Fulbright Scholars already in the U.S. to your campus.

Fulbright Visiting Scholar Program for Iraq

This 10-week program brings cohorts of Iraqi scholars in select fields to U.S. institutions for faculty development, research, and other guided study activities.

Middle East and North Africa Regional Short-Term Visiting Fulbright Scholar Program in Science and Technology

25 scholars from 12 countries in the Middle East and North Africa receive grants to participate in one of five discipline-based cohorts. The program's purposes are to promote faculty development and to build higher education capacity in science and technology fields in the participants' home countries.

The Fulbright Program, sponsored by the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs, is the U.S. government's flagship international exchange program and is supported by the people of the United States and partner countries around the world.
